CONCLUSION:

From the study of brain in different groups of vertebrates it becomes clear that all vertebrates brains are based on the same fundamental plan but in course of evolution, there is a gradual and progressive change in their architecture and the highest development & complexity of brains have reached in mammals.